‘Endo-On-Demand’ puts endodontic education at practitioners’ fingertips

The American Association of Endodontists has created a new online learning platform offering 24/7 access to more than 500 hours of C.E. from AAE annual meetings and other education events. Endo On Demand offers endodontists and other dental professionals access to specialty education featuring some of the most sought-after thought leaders in endodontics. Subscribers benefit from access to AAE’s extensive library of content as well as the ability to earn C.E. credit online in a unique and user-friendly format.

“The AAE is committed to quality, excellence, professionalism and lifelong learning,” said AAE Executive Director Kenneth J. Widelka. “Endo On Demand exemplifies this by offering access to the most complete library of educational presentations and materials online, delivered by leaders in the specialty.”

Endo On Demand is available and accessible anytime, anywhere, via PC, laptop, tablet or smartphone. Users can navigate content by type, event and topic — and use “sort” and “search” functions to quickly find educational offerings. Additional key benefits include:

- Mobile-friendly: sleek, modern design.
- Flexible training: Refresh skills, learn new techniques and use the presentations to train teams.
- My Dashboard: Track session progress and receive C.E. verification letters all from one convenient area.
- Expanding course offerings: While past meeting sessions will continue to be available, watch for new content areas to come online.
- Session previews: Comprehensive session previews with speakers’ bios are now available to help subscribers select the best sessions for their learning needs.

Subscribers to AAE’s previous online learning platform will have access to Endo On Demand through June 30. Non-subscribers can learn more about the site and purchase access online.
